Jawi Clinic Camp Empowers Teaching, Learning Jawi Script

Last update: 17/12/2017

KUALA LUMPUR, Dec 16 (Bernama) -- The Jawi Clinic Camp 2017 has helped to popularise and empower the culture of teaching and learning of Jawi script and inculcating the love of Jawi among Malaysians.

National Library of Malaysia (PNM) Director-General Datuk Nafisah Ahmad said the day-long camp, jointly organised by PNM and the Malaysian Institute of Islamic Understanding (IKIM), had provided the participants with the exposure on the latest Jawi script by the Dewan Bahasa dan Pustaka (DBP).

"The camp has also given the participants the opportunity to recognise and study the Jawi script as a simple, beautiful writing style and should be mastered by all, as a legacy of the Malays that can indirectly produce the community who understand Jawi and the Quran," she said this to reporters at the closing ceremony of the Jawi Clinic Camp 2017 here today.

The camp also provided the participants with Jawi script experts who gave them the exposure apart from answering any questions pertaining to the Jawi scripts.

Meanwhile, PNM, together with IKIM.fm radio station, have been co-producing the Jawi Clinic since June 2012 and the show could be viewed via social media Facebook Go Live IKIM.fm and it aimed at elevating the Jawi scripts as a recognised national language and heritage that needed to be preserved.....
