National Library: The E-Lib database will not be terminated until 2024

Charact

KUALA LUMPUR (Jan 28): The National Library today denied that it had issued a notice to terminate the e-book library service (E-Lib) database as the database is valid until February 1, 2024.

The National Library of China said in a statement that Malaysians can still browse up to 1,500 reading materials through the E-Lib online database.

The statement pointed out that the National Library has been working hard to subscribe to existing or new online databases to facilitate the community and provide opportunities for online database companies.

"The National Library never loses sight of today's very important database needs."

According to reports, the National Library of China has stopped ordering local e-books and only keeps ordering foreign e-books, leading to complaints from affected suppliers and over a hundred publishers and authors to the Ministry of Tourism, as the move will harm local digital content publishers and the author's income.
